Message:

I will acknowledge that both political parties have engaged in partisan gerrymandering in the past. This is the very reason I feel strongly that a bipartisan commission must be set up to draw new lines for political districts based on the 2020 United States Census Data. Given the sophistication of current technology it should be relatively cut and dry to compute districts that are geographically contiguous, that equally reflect different ethnicities, economic levels, political points of view and other details reflected in the census data. The overall goal should be the unimpeded participation of every qualified voter in the state of Texas and accurately represent the demographics thereof.

To do anything less is to undertake the systematic destruction of the democratic principals this country was founded on! We are watching.
