The proposed map severely dilutes the diverse, urban areas of Texas, which are the areas that generate economic opportunity and pay taxes. For example, the business districts of Houston’s Galleria and Energy Corridor are combined with Edna, Texas - hardly promoting responsive representation. The goal is obviously partisan, but the damage is to both diversity AND prosperity – it couldn’t be more poorly conceived.