Message:

I am a lifelong resident and constituent of Texas' 22nd Congressional District. I write today in opposition to these mid-census political tactics designed to curry favor with those in DC. As a proud Texan, it is a sad day to see our state bending the knee to outsiders. Whatever happened to Texas pride, dignity, and independence?

I strongly oppose the proposed maps. It's baffling that my suburb, Pearland, would be lumped into a district alongside Beaumont, Galveston, and Port Arthur. How does that make any logical or geographical sense? The only explanation is fear and political fragility.

These maps do not serve the people or their communities. They serve the incumbents and the ruling party. I am not writing as a Republican or Democrat, but as a Texan and an American. Once again, my community is sliced and diced in silence for political gain.

If your priority was truly representing the people, we would have fairer maps that encourage competition. If you're worried about losing elections or public opinion, let the voters decide at the ballot box. Don't resort to these cynical political maneuvers to protect your seats.

I promise you, if this bill passes, Texans and Americans will hold you accountable at the polls.

Gerrymandering should be illegal in all its forms. If we truly respect the Voting Rights Act, which protects vulnerable and marginalized communities like mine, we would empower an independent, bipartisan commission to draw fair maps that reflect our communities.

No single congressperson should represent millions of constituents. That is ineffective representation. I've had multiple congresspeople in my lifetime, but have only spoken to one once, and rarely seen them in our community.

If you care about doing what's right, listen to voices like mine who demand fair maps. Maps that represent the real communities that make Texas strong. Don't listen to the swamp puppeteers in DC or the White House dictating what we can do here in Texas.

Let's do this the Texas way—not the Trump way.
