Message:

Texas redistricting at this time, mid-census, in order to bow to pressure from the current occupant of the white house, who is afraid of losing power, is asinine.

Claims that the currently drawn districts are racist was proven false in court after the 2020 census. Drawing new districts now on the other hand would definitely be both racist and solely politically motivated. Drawing new maps to get rid of 5 democratic seats to try and silence black and brown voters is cowardly and anti-democratic.

Texas was once a bastion for freedom and independence with legislators who had backbones and whose voices meant something to the people they represented. Bowing to the whims of a wanna-be authoritarian instead of listening to actual Texans is not leading, it is political theater, and I for one am tired of this clownish behavior. I am fully against any attempt to redraw Texas district maps at this time.
