Regarding: Congressional

Message:

I strongly oppose the proposed action of redistricting areas within the State. All voices need to be a part of the narrative that creates and implements policy that affects ALL TEXANS. By allowing any further redistricting to occur, Congress will indicate that the voice of the people of Texas does not matter and should be silenced. Allowing a non-Texan, aka the current sitting president of the United States, to have such control over the voices of the people who reside here is the most un-Texan and me>we mentality that does not AND SHOULD NOT define who we are. Rest assured, that new attitude toward our great state and its residents will become the new narrative that will follow all those in Congress who vote in favor of redistricting, especially those who haven't even set eyes on the proposed maps.

Also, the pendulum always swings both ways, as Republicans you should know this. If approved, when it comes back around and voices of millions of Texans rings loud and true, the state will turn blue. This will be all because current Congress was short-sighted and misguided in their attempt to maintain control.
