Message:

Texas Democrats presently have 46% of the registered voters in the state. In the most recent gubernatorial and U.S. Senate races, Democrats carried at least 44% of the vote. Yet, under the current congressional maps Democrats have only 13 of Texas' 38 U.S. Representatives seats, 34%. Texas Democrats are already underrepresented under the current districting plan. If an additional 5 seats were taken from the Democrats and given to Republicans, Democrats would then be grossly underrepresented with only 21% of the seats. There is absolutely no justification for giving additional seats to the Republicans. This is merely an attempted power grab by Trump and the Republicans as they desperately try to hold on to their thin margin in the House. This would be a gross injustice to Texas Democrats and must be stopped.
