Hi. To open, I am a twenty-four-year-old woman, born and raised in Texas. That used to be a point of pride for me. What this state has come to represent, the absolute worst of what America has to offer, is a hard pill to swallow. Truly, I have no faith that hearing from me, y'all's constituent, will mean anything to the people reading this. If it is read at all. The page I am submitting this file to says, "...the committee looks forward to reviewing your comments." Hah! We both know that is not true, right? Whether you want to argue that point or not, there is a massive problem at hand if your constituents believe their voices will be met with nothing more than unveiled apathy. It is a massive problem that I hesitated to add my age and gender, knowing that I will most likely be profiled for it by the much older white men reading this. I am willing to bet that my last comment just made many white men roll their eyes. If I was not written off for my age or gender, that one definitely got me labelled as a woke, man-hating, libt*rd, feminist. The horror!

Dear GOP, if you are still listening, dig deep inside yourself and find some integrity. Do something powerful, become someone who isn't just a puppet for Donald Trump to yank around. For the love of God, at least try to beat the allegations. Wouldn't it feel nice to actually do the right thing for once and prove those pesky Democrats wrong? To prove that you guys are not actually as soulless as your actions would lead people to believe. Would not it feel nice to win fair and square? Without gerrymandering? Without fearmongering? Without planting seeds of hate in your voters? Imagine a world in which you win midterms because you are actually working in your constituents' best interest.

Oh, who am I kidding? The Texas GOP is just another group of Republicans who wear their hypocrisy like a badge of honor. The MVP goes to you, Greg Abbott. Congratulations, you have earned it fair and square. Y'all have made Trump more than just your idol, you have made him your god. How absolutely silly it is to continue ranting about "Christian values" when each one of you is far closer to embodying the devil himself than Jesus! Right now, you have the choice to honor the wishes of the leader of a fascist regime, therefore trampling on the constitution, or to forgo redistricting. As one of your constituents, I am asking you not to redraw district lines to favor the Texas GOP. Be better than a group of men and women who cower under a president that boldly spits in the face of our beloved constitution. Stop rolling over in submission, showing your underbelly, every time Trump looks this way. Be the leaders you claim to be. Your legacy, thus far, is appalling. Each Texas legislator that does Trump's bidding will be remembered as a fascist and a coward— as the amoral, power-hungry, sell-out you are. You will never be able to distance yourself from this regime for as long as you live, your constituents will make sure of it. This ploy to gerrymander is unpopular amongst the majority of Texas citizens, even those identifying as republicans.

Listen to the people you are supposed to represent!
