Message:

Dear Members of the Senate Special Committee on Congressional Redistricting,

I am writing as a concerned Texan deeply troubled by what appears to be yet another attempt to manipulate district boundaries for partisan gain.
Redistricting should serve the people, not political power.

Texans are increasingly showing up to vote and making their voices heard, and instead of honoring that democratic engagement, these proposed maps suggest an effort to dilute the power of voters, particularly voters of color and younger voters whose views may not align with the current majority.
This is not representation. It is rigging the rules.

Our democracy depends on fair maps that reflect our communities, not ones designed to pre-determine outcomes. Gerrymandering, no matter which party engages in it, is a betrayal of the democratic process and undermines public trust in government. People should choose their representatives. Representatives should not be choosing their voters.

I urge this committee to prioritize transparency, fairness, and equity in the redistricting process. Put people over politics. We deserve better.
