

Date: 2025-07-31
First Name: Kit Frieden
Last Name: Shook
Title: N/A
Organization: Self
Address: [REDACTED]
City: Houston
State: TX
Zipcode: [REDACTED]
Phone: [REDACTED]

Affirm public info: I agree

Regarding: Congressional

Message:

Redistricting now is a terrible idea and will further under-represent Hispanics and blacks who, combined with other non-whites, comprise the majority of Texas residents.

Why are our legislators choosing to do what Trump asks instead of listening to their constituents? I am a resident of Houston, and my congressional district just changed in 2021. Every new map requires some percentage of voters to study entirely new candidates and perhaps change where they vote. As a mother and grandmother, I am asking you to please think of us voters.

We all know the purpose is to rig the 2026 election in an effort to keep the U.S. House in the hands of Republicans — at the request of President Trump. Listen to what one of your own former colleagues wrote in the New York Times last week:

"[Trump is] pushing Texas Republicans to use a special legislative session to redraw districts in a way that could effectively disenfranchise thousands of people who don't always vote for Republicans, particularly those in historically majority-minority communities — an apparent bid to rig the 2026 midterm elections long before the votes are cast."

That statement is from Burt Solomons, a Republican member of the Texas House of Representatives from 1995 to 2013 who chaired the Redistricting Committee.

Shouldn't the Texas Legislature be doing the work of the people — like ensuring no more little children are swept away in floodwaters? You know you are only taking on this reckless, unscrupulous action because you fear Donald Trump. Can you not muster some courage and stand up for yourselves — and for us?

Submitted on July 31 to Senate Redistricting committee

Redistricting now is a terrible idea and will further under-represent Hispanics and blacks who, combined with other non-whites, comprise the majority of Texas residents.

Why are our legislators choosing to do what Trump asks instead of listening to their constituents? I am a resident of Houston, and my congressional district just changed in 2021. Every new map requires some percentage of voters to study entirely new candidates and perhaps change where they vote. As a mother and grandmother, I am asking you to please think of us voters.

We all know the purpose is to rig the 2026 election in an effort to keep the U.S. House in the hands of Republicans — at the request of President Trump. Listen to what one of your own former colleagues wrote in the New York Times last week:

"[Trump is] pushing Texas Republicans to use a special legislative session to redraw districts in a way that could effectively disenfranchise thousands of people who don't always vote for Republicans, particularly those in historically majority-minority communities — an apparent bid to rig the 2026 midterm elections long before the votes are cast."

That statement is from Burt Solomons, a Republican member of the Texas House of Representatives from 1995 to 2013 who chaired the Redistricting Committee.

Shouldn't the Texas Legislature be doing the work of the people — like ensuring no more little children are swept away in floodwaters? You know you are only taking on this reckless, unscrupulous action because you fear Donald Trump. Can you not muster some courage and stand up for yourselves — and for us?