Message:

I oppose the attempt to redraw political districts ahead of the midterm elections. There's no reason for me or any of us to believe that this is being done in good faith for OUR benefit. You are meant to help represent US with how these districts are drawn, not to serve your own agenda—or rather, Trump's, as he is the one who initiated this. He has specifically directed you to target districts with majority minority voters, many of which favored Kamala Harris in the previous election. For him to demand redrawing those lines with this context leaves no other explanation than that he wants you to dilute those voters' voices and help skew votes in the Republican party's favor. He wants you to fix the elections. That's not how politics should work, and anyone supporting this should be ashamed of themselves for engaging in such a transparent effort to interfere with and undermine the right of Texas voters to have our say, to effect change in OUR government. Truthfully, it does not matter what any one of you wants because the point of these districts is to help represent ALL of our opinions through fair distribution, even when the majority opinion isn't the one you want. And that is our right as Texans and as Americans. Have a spine for our sake.
