Message:

Republicans are again changing the rules so it's easier for them to win and doing this all while they should be focusing on relief efforts for the victims of the devastating floods.

My district and others don't actually represent the real population of my community and my neighbors. This is not democracy. This is not freedom. This is Republicans throwing around their power because they rigged the game so they win and now they feel threatened.

If Republicans want to win so bad why don't they become better at helping the people who actually need this time? Why are they focusing on trans people? That's not what this session is about, this session is supposed to be helping the victims who have lost their town, their homes, their friends and family. Shame on Republicans for making this about anything else then what it is. Shame on the people who care more about power than the loss of life.
