I'm the Chair of the Montgomery County Democratic Party—yes, that Montgomery County. The one national and state Republicans love to count on, but never actually listen to unless we're parroting their talking points.

I'm here to say hell no to this mid-cycle redistricting scam. This isn't about fixing broken maps—it's about fixing elections for a party that's terrified of losing fair elections. Governor Abbott ignored this so-called problem for years, but suddenly now it's a crisis... right after Donald Trump called and told him to redraw the maps? That's not leadership—that's following orders from a guy who couldn't find Conroe on a map unless it came with a golf cart and a cheeseburger.

Let's be real: the districts under attack here—like those in Houston and Fort Worth and the RGV—are some of the few that actually let Black, Latino, and Asian voters build coalitions and elect leaders who represent them. And now you want to blow them up because diversity makes you uncomfortable?

Meanwhile, in Montgomery County, we're dealing with school boards pushing culture war nonsense instead of focusing on educating our kids, roads that can't keep up with growth, and neighborhoods still waiting on basic flood infrastructure. But instead of helping us, you're holding a redistricting hearing in July to make Trump happy.

Y'all are playing politics with people's representation. Texans didn't ask for this. Montgomery County didn't ask for this. And if you keep forcing this sham through, don't be shocked when voters across my county—and my state —start fighting back.
