Message:

As a Texan who believes in fair elections and equal representation, I strongly oppose any redistricting efforts designed to favor one party or silence specific communities. Gerrymandering—especially when it’s racially or politically motivated—is a direct attack on our democratic values.

Every voter in Texas deserves to have their voice count equally. But when district lines are manipulated behind closed doors, it chips away at trust in our government and denies people the representation they’re entitled to.

I’m calling on Texas lawmakers to reject any maps that dilute voter power, split communities, or protect political interests over the public good. This process should be open, accountable, and rooted in fairness—not secrecy or self-interest.

Texas doesn’t belong to politicians—it belongs to the people. Let’s demand a redistricting process that reflects that truth.
