How is this still going on in 2025? If you can't win because the people support your policies and agenda, then you don't deserve to win.

I keep hearing how Republicans want to destroy DEI programs and make everything merit based. Where is the merit in rigging the system so that only you get to win? The mendacity that spews from the mouths of Republicans is sickening. To say that you want the world to be married based, and then have the audacity to rig the playing field to only support your agenda is atrocious.

I am tired of the lip service that Republican politicians give towards protecting women, protecting children, and wanting to make this world, a better place while limited healthcare care for women and children, cutting social aid programs, undermining the public education system, and vilifying anyone that does not agree with them. If your policies and agendas were truly beneficial, and supported women and children, you wouldn't have to cheat to win.

I have always been one that looks at the candidate and not at the party when deciding who to vote for and why to vote for them. This behavior is causing good politicians that have actual good policies and agendas to lose local elections because they are Republican. This behavior is causing people like me to want to vote straight Democrat because the idea that someone would be affiliated with such abhorrent behavior speaks volumes as to their character. I do not know how good people can say they are Republicans right now because of all of the duplicitous and malicious behavior. People across Texas are losing sight as to the purpose of state and local government for the cult of personality that has become the Republican Party. Politicians serve all their constituents and not just the ones with the biggest pocket book. We live in a democratic republic, which means we still live in a democratic based system of government, who's elected officials represent the people who live in the area that they were elected to represent NOT just the people who voted for them.

To be clear, redistricting Texas to silence the voices of the minority is not a real. It does not truly silence that voice. It shows the country and the world that you care more about forcing people into submission and subjugation than listening to their wants and needs. It tells them that we fight dirty in Texas and invites them to do the same. Are Republicans so consumed with their desire to be in power that they will do anything to win? Are they so afraid of actually standing up to the cult that has consumed the Republican Party that they would submit to the will of the minority? Shame on you that are doing this! Do your job; listen to the people; and earn your seat in government. Stop trying to say that you support merit based leadership while trying to take away the ability to actually achieve that.

In case it is not clear, I DO NOT SUPPORT THE REDISTRICTING OF TEXAS. I DO NOT SUPPORT THE SILENCING OF THE MINORITY.
